Pops - You came back from your Anime Expo thing today. While you talked about the "weird guy" all I could think about was that it's odd people like him that can turn an exciting experience into a scary one. What if this guy had turned out to be a mental freak and harmed one of you. The human being is an unpredictable living creature. I am glad you're home. I worry about you growing up. Don't always be so trusting.

Momma - You're spending the night at grandmas for the fourth. I worry about you with the cousins sometimes. They're not all sane. And you sometimes venture to be the bold one. There is no need for that. Slow down, observe more than you participate, and when you do, make it count.
